

Recreational Meetings: Installation with Nick Andersen

CONFETTISYSTEM, 100 Arrangements, 2013. Installation view, MoMA PS1, New York City, 2013

About Recreational Meetings: Installation

Developed in collaboration with Nick Andersen of CONFETTISYSTEM, this meeting invites participants to transform their devices into kaleidoscopic installations using everyday household materials.

Collaborator Bio

CONFETTISYSTEM is Julie Ho and Nicholas Valite Andersen, a duo working as artists, stylists, and designers. Their shared love of communal celebration and craft making brought them together to create Confettisystem in 2008. Together they transform simple materials like tissue paper, cardboard, and mylar into ephemeral objects and installations with a sense of nostalgia and lighthearted fun. Confettisystem has created installations and provided art direction for brands including Lane Crawford, Opening Ceremony, Target, and Maryam Nassir Zadeh, as well as performers such as Beach House, Beyonce, and the Yeah Yeah Yeahs. They have collaborated with the American Ballet Theatre, MoMA PS1, and the New York Times and for events like Bubble T, Papi Juice, Sugar Mountain Festival, and Warm Up at MoMA PS1. The duo has exhibited internationally and has been featured in Dwell, Interview, New York Magazine, Office Magazine, Teen Vogue, Sight Unseen, and V Magazine, among other publications.